LOOK TO THIS DAY

Look to this day,

For it is the very life of life.

In its brief course lie all the verities and realities of your existence:

The glory of action,

The bliss of growth,

The splendor of beauty,

For yesterday is but a dream and tomorrow is only a vision;

But today well lived makes every yesterday a dream of happiness, and every tomorrow a vision of hope.

Look well, therefore, to this day.

-Author Unknown

'For it is the very life of life'

Taking advantage of free bus transportation, Billy Bancom and Alfred Deese disembark to begin their daily routines.

Having passed more rapidly than most students realize, the school year 1965-1966 is illustrative of how quickly a lifetime is concluded. "Look to This Day" was selected as the theme of the 1966 TOMAHAWK in an attempt to provide a complete and accurate coverage of "this day" in our lives. While underclassmen still look forward to high school "days," seniors look to the horizon of higher education or employment.

Today is the very life of life: influenced by yesterday, it helps determine tomorrow. Realizing this fact and putting forth unlimited personal efforts will insure self-satisfaction on behalf of the student. Contrarily, inadequate consideration of today may be indicative of a squandered lifetime.

In its brief course lie all the verities and realities

Each day that passes becomes a small but vital component of one's life. Rather than anticipate the close of a day, students should realize the potential within it and strive to their utmost to make the day fruitful. Each day is one's own; to squander it is to lose a personal possession.

Just as a fallen leaf is caught by the wind and carried to an undetermined fate, apathetic students find themselves enveloped by the rushing winds of life without a goal towards which to strive. It is necessary to greet each dawning day with renewed determination and a goal in mind in order to fulfill the expectations of that day. To omit a single day from any person's life would be to alter every day thereafter in his life. As insignificant as it may seem, each day makes existence a reality. Tomorrow is an intangible dream; today, a vital truth. Enjoying life from day to day assures a progression of pleasant verities.

Through a never-ceasing chain of new experiences, one gains invaluable knowledge and comprehension of life's complexities. Dwelling upon past events of yester-day will never after them; however, knowledge gained through experience may render tomorrow more productive. Missing a test question or committing an embarrassing "faux pas" usually prevents the incident from recurring.

The venties and realities of each day are different for each student. However, everyone faces problems, of which the solutions affect his entire existence. "This day" has held unique experiences and problems for each student. By meeting the challenges with relentless efforts and undarinted spirits, students may envision tomorow with hope and dream of yesterday with contentment.

Through narrative pictures and informative copy, the TOMAHAWK staff endeavored to capture the glory of action, the blass of growth, and the splendor of beauty and compile them into an exciting, cherishable yearbook. They hoped to create a book which would recon "this day" as a memorable reacty

ACTIVITIES

Council Sponsors Christmas Semiformal Dance

Understanding that the members would have to work diligently during the year to attain the high goals set for them, the Student Council adopted the theme "Climb Every Mountain." The significance of the theme was shown in the representation of goals as mountains Each council member was presented with a challenge to scale the mountains of school spirit, scholarship, citizenship, participation, and fellowship.

As its primary purpose the council co-ordinated student activities and services. Secondly, it developed leadership and responsibility of its members. Through projects and activities the council rendered its service as an instrument of the student body. Each West student is represented by one of the council's members Class presidents, twelve committee chairmen, club presidents, council otheers, homeroom presidents, and the editors and business managers of the Tomahawk and the Bow and Arrow constitute the Student Council.

Activities and projects included sponsoring three socials. Youth Appreciation Week, club recognition, and an orientation program and sending Christmas cards to soldiers in Vietnam. Committees, which were composed of interested student body members, carried out projects such as Rip the Ram Week, the Student Abroad program, and the Christmas door decoration contest.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

Striving to fulfill the responsibilities placed on it by the Student Council, the Social Committee planned the three school socials To execute its duties more efficiently, the committee divided into two main subcommit tees. One subcommittee arranged for the bands to provide music and for the intermission entertainment. The other subcommittee planned and purchased the refreshments and served them during the intermission, All committee members co-operated to make the decorations and were responsible for helping to put them up. After the socials, when the other students had left, committee members staved to take down decorations and clean up the gym, putting it in order for classes the next day.

SCHOOL SPIRIT COMMITTEL

Under the leadership of committee chair man Bob Werth, School Spirit Committee members strove to boost spirit to a greater level and to better sportsmanship among the stadents. By means of announcements over the public address system, posters, and signs, the committee informed the student body of all athletic events. To increase school spirit among the students, committee members as sembled booster tags, which were sold at school throughout the year, and shakies, which were sold at football games. Other activities of the School Spirit Committee were decorating Memorial Stadium for all football games, helping with the decorations for the homecoming game and festivities, and decorating the gym for all basketball games. In addition the committee posted a bulletin board in the front half which covered all games during the basketball season.

of past award winning annuals. In the fall editors and assistants made plans, revised plans, and sometimes revised again. Unexpected holidays created by winter snows found staffers at school working steadily, though constantly plagued by a fear of such terrible terms as "deadlines" and "dead headlines." After months of fren zied activity, however, the 1966 Tomanawk finally went to press, and staff members could only await the return of the yearbook in which they had endeavored

November, the business staff solicited ads from business firms to provide funds to publish the 1966 Tomahawk. Later during the school year, members of the business staff took subscriptions for the annual. Soliciting names for the boster page of the Tomahawk was also a project of the business staff. Since the staff was responsible for the layout of the advertising section, members began planning the layout after all ads had been turned in and recorded. After this layout was combined with the editorial layout, the annual was sent to press and the business staff began preparations for next year

Quill and Scroll Rewards Outstanding Staffers

To the students serving on the staffs of the school's two publications, the Tomanawk and the Bow and Arrow, their jobs as high school journalists demand hard work and dedication. It is the purpose of the Quill and Scroll Society to honor those students who exhibit outstanding achievement in fulfilling their responsibilities as members on either of the annual's two staffs or on the newspapers staff. Members, who are tapped into the club each year during the munth of March, must have served for at least one year on a journalism staff and must rank in the upper third of their class in general scholastic standing. Through the Quill and Scroll, members are encouraged to consider a field in journalism as a possible profession.

Fair, Movies, Trips Create Interest in GRAM

For the first time in its history, the science club adopted an official name and emblem. Members named the club Group for Research of Atoms and Microbes, commonly called GRAM by its members.

Serving as a means for students to further their scientific knowledge, the science club attempted to promote an interest in science within the student body. To aid students in this undertaking, as one of its projects for the year, the club sponsored the school science fair in which any interested student could participate.

By field trips and weekly movies, members were able to broaden their understanding of scientific processes and phenomena. Also, the club encouraged its members to consider the various fields of science when they began choosing their vocations

Most Active Clubs Receive Outstanding Club Award

To strengthen student participation in clubs and to increase cath activity, the Student Council sponsored a club award program. Through this program an out standing club was selected for each quarter of the school year, and from these clubs a Club of the Year was chosen.

Club presidents were provided forms on which they sted club activities and projects undertaken within a une-weeks' period. These forms were then submitted to the Executive Committee of the Student Council which judged them and decided which club merited the club award. ### in Presentation of Various Types of Literature

With the use of new tape recorders, record players and over head projectors, the instructors augmented the scope of English courses and presented material with varied techniques. These new devices supplemented lectures. Student participation included creating visual projects, presenting brief orations, and participating to panel discussions

Being a required course each year, English has as its main objective the mastery of the language in both written and oral forms. Every English class sophomore junior, and senior—learns the rules and construction of grammar and their application in speaking and writing

Besides the study of grammar, various types of Interature are taught. Sophomores survey world literature and study in particular JULIUS CAESAR, IDYLLS OF THE KING, SILAS MARNER, and THE KING AND I. English III constitutes a comprehensive study of American literature with emphasis on the American classical novel and OUR TOWN. Seniors read English literature with accentuation on Shakespeare. They also study Greek mythology, Greek plays, and portions of M ton and Chaucer.

Designed to create in students an awareness and appreciation of life, the first year of biology is a general study and comparison of the various life forms and their development. Use of a new over-head projector and other visual aids enabled the instructors to give a graphic explanation of life's intricacies. For a specialized study of life, one has the opportunity to take a second-year course. This course is designed to help the student obtain an understanding of science as a vigorous interaction of facts and ideas.

Study of matter's various properties is the main purpose of Chemistry I. Laboratory work and visual aids help to enrich the course of study. Second year chemistry offers an opportunity to study chemistry in greater detail. More emphasis is placed on laboratory experience and individual mitiative.

Physics is a study of the physical properties of matter. By observations made during experiments, the student is able to obtain a graphic representation of the properties and is able to predict reactions when these properties are exposed to various reactants.

Combining classroom experience with actual on the job training, the vocational courses—marketing, Distributive Education I and II, Industrial Co-operative Framing I and II, and co-operative other occupations prepare students for successful careers in the business world

To enable the students to successfully compete in the field of distribution, distributive education covers through classroom work such important facilits as sales manship, sales promotion, and distributive organization. By means of on-the job training, D.E. and T.C. I. students develop the skills necessary for useful and rewarding careers.

By considering all phases involved in production, marketing students, lakewise, are introduced to the field of distribution. Instructions in retail and wholesale distribution, salesmanship, and advertising are provided to enable the students to successfully enter the varied marketing professions.

Students of co-operative office occupations cover such phases of business procedure as business machines, filing payroll, and human relations. Clerical students deal primarily with business machines comptometers, calculators, typewriters, key punch, and ten key adding matchines. During the first six weeks, the students, consisting primarily of sophomores, learned the rules of the road through classwork. This portion of the course is designed to give students an understanding of the basic fundamentals of a car and to educate them on proper driving habits. Upon completion of classwork, students transferred into either their physical education class or study hall. Through supervised road work, students applied the knowledge they gained in class. Driver education strives to teach the students to drive correctly, carefully, and courteously.

THE SENIOR CLASS

Excitement was at its peak for upperclassmen when senior rings arrived on the day of the anticipated West Harding football game. Ordering calling cards and in vitations on November 5, 1965, made seniors cognizant of the fact that graduation was no longer a far-away dream but was a rapidly approaching reality. Taking the college board examination in preparation for college was a memorable occasion for many seniors. Frequent trips to the guidance office were made by those seniors seeking advice about vocational choices. College-bound seniors faced the decision of selecting colleges at which to further their educations. Participating in distributive education or commercial courses enabled other seniors to prepare for their futures through the school's work program. Among the most thritting memories to seniors were those of attending the athletic events. Nothing made a senior prouder than shouting, "VICTORY, that's the SINIORS' battle cry!" during a pep rally or ball game. No senior will ever forget German born Signid Wischhusen who, when introduced at the first pep rally, said, "I feel sorry for those poor Rams!" The dances, club meetings, the Junior Senior Prom, and numerous other precious moments cherished by each upper classman will remain forever dear to every graduate from the class of 1960.

THE JUNIOR CLASS

From the very first day of the 1965-1966 school year, the juniors were caught up in the enthusiasm of varied activities, both scholastic and extracurricular. This class proved itself no exception to the highly productive classes of previous years. Such activities as electing class officers, bolding class meetings, and planning the Junior Senior Prom highlighted a busy year.

l or the first time in several years, a student-abroad program was established. A junior of high scholastic ability possessing the traits of honesty and good citizenship and having a knowledge of the language of the host country was chosen to spend a summer in a foreign country. Using the funds obtained from the record-breaking Christmas card sales, the Junior Class was able, with much hard work involved, to plan and present the annual Junior Senior Prom on May 13, 1966. Students selected by the class president worked closely and secretly to present a successful ending to a successful year.

Many juniors made scholastic achievements, also. A record number of juniors were inducted into the Beta Club and several junior boys were inducted into the Key Club.

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS

Intering West for the first time, sophomores were ooking for knowledge, friendship, and a sense of belonging. Finding the first days quite a challenge, the newcomers were given aid by Student Council guides and upperclassmen. To help in making the tenth graders feel welcome, the Labrary Club sponsored a Sophomore Lea Adapting to a new schedule which included biology, English II, world history, physical education, and two electives was an ordeal for everyone at first Late in September sophomores elected officers to lead the class and to officiate at the class meeting in the spring. I we sophomore girls served as cheerleaders for the junio, varsity football and baskerball mains.

Through active participation in various clubs and membership on committees, sophomores took on responsibilities in preparation for leadership in senior high school. As the year came to a close, the newcomers had more than gained the knowledge friendship, and sense of belonging they were seeking Rabbi Joseph Asher, of Greensboro, North Carolina, delivered the baccalaureate sermon. "We Have Reason to Believe at the service held on May 30 in the Charlotte Colliseum Sponsored by the Interfaith Baccalaureate Committee the program included participation by fifteen high schools. Platform guests included Dr. A. Craig Phillips Mr. David W. Harris, and student body presidents from each school. Serving as ushers were junior marshals from the lifteen participating schools.

PEP RALLES

Where's your school spirit?" was an unnecessity question this year as was evidenced by enthusiastic students who attended the pep rallies. Led by the cheer leaders and lettergirls, the students demonstrated enthusiastic support of the teams by yells which rocked the gym at each rally. During football season the pep rallies were highlighted by introductions of the players and the presentation of the school spirit Honor Roll covered with signatures of students. A scrimmage between the varsity and junior varsity teams at a pep rally did much to increase the already ebullient spirit during basketball season.

Hr Macon's homeroom was first place with the secular theme. The Key to the Land of the Jolly Red Giant.

To contribute a festive air to the Yuletide season, the House and Grounds Committee of the Student Council sponsored a Christmas door decoration contest during the last week of school before the Christmas holidays. So that each homeroom might be in contention for one of the two first place prizes awarded, the contest was divided into two classifications, religious and secular. Each homeroom decided on its theme and appointed a committee to do the decorating.

The Student Council asked students to obey two rules when planning decorations: doors were to be inexpensive and fire proof. Impressive designs appeared in ideas from cards, carols, and imaginations. Chosen by several images, the winners were innounced in a Student Council meeting at the close of the week. Winning the two top awards were Mr. Macon's junior homeroom in the secular category and Miss Tyler's senior homeroom with a religious theme.

Today well lived makes every resterday a dream of happiness, and every tomorrow a vision of hope. Reviewing the 1965-1966 school year, the TOMAHAWK staff sincerely hopes that it is a dream of happiness. The staff labored diligently for many hours to bring you, the student body, a complete coverage of "this day." Acknowledgments are extended to all who helped make this publication possible. "This day" is but a short chapter from the book of life, but it will prepare a person for the chapters yet to be written. Yesterday can never be changed, but one's vision of hope for tomorrow can be made a reality. Look well, therefore, to this day.
